Paul Omilon Resource Person

Paul Omilon

Paul's attention to detail has been fostered by his careers as a forensic scientist, and a business consultant as he developed his skills working in fine detail with wood. He has turned spindles ranging in size from 14 foot columns to small intricate pulls and finials on utilitarian and artistic works.

His more recent work is focused on bowls, hollow forms and artistic works of art. He enjoys incorporating non-wood materials in his work as it has opened new avenues to explore in his work.

This workshop is primarily on spindle turning techniques with emphasis on tool handling practice and design of spindle turned objects.
